

Patricia A. Edwards is a member of the Reading Hall of Fame and a NCRL (National Conference on Research in Language and Literacy Distinguished Scholar, is a Professor of Language and Literacy in the Teacher Education Department at Michigan State University. She received her B.S. in Elementary Education from Albany State University (Albany, Georgia); the M.S. in Elementary Education from North Carolina A&T University, her Educational Specialist in Reading Education from Duke University; and her Ph.D. in Reading Education from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. She is a nationally and internationally recognized expert in parent involvement, home, school, community partnerships, multicultural literacy, early literacy, and family/intergenerational literacy, especially among poor and minority children.

She served as the Chair of the American Educational Research Association's Family, School, Community Partnerships Special Interest Group. She also served as a member of the Board of Directors from 1998 to 2001 of the International Literacy Association (formally the International Reading Association), from 2006 to 2007 as the first African American President of the Literacy Research Association, and as the 2010 - 2011 President of the International Literacy Association.

She has published articles in highly refereed journals and authored two nationally acclaimed family literacy programs: Parents as Partners in Reading: A Family Literacy Training Program (1993, 1990) and Talking Your Way to Literacy: A Program to Help Nonreading Parents Prepare Their Children for Reading (1990). She is the coauthor of A Path to Follow: Learning to Listen to Parents, Bridging Literacy and Equity: The Essential Guide to Social Equity Teaching (2012), and Change is Gonna Come: Transforming Literacy for African American Students (2010), winner of the 2011 Literacy Research Association's Edward B. Fry Book Award.

Dr. Edwards is also the author of Tapping the Potential of Parents: A Strategic Guide to Boosting Student Achievement Through Family Involvement (2009), Children's Literacy Development: Making It Happen Through School, Family, and Community Involvement (2004), and New Ways to Engage Parents: Strategies and Tools for Teachers and Leaders (2016), winner of the 2017 Delta Kappa Gamma Educators Book Award. A 2019 Teachers College Press book, Partnering with Families for Student Success: 24 Scenarios for Problem Solving with Parents recommended for the 2021 AACTE Outstanding Book Award, helps teachers gain confidence and build sensitivity when interacting with caregivers and families who speak diverse languages and may come from different cultural, racial, and social backgrounds.

Dr. Edwards is a member of the Michigan Department of Education's Family Engagement Stakeholders' Taskforce. She is the recipient of the Literacy Research Association's 2012 Albert J. Kingston Service Award, the 2014 International Literacy Association Jerry Johns Outstanding Teacher Educator in Reading Award, and the 2015 Michigan Reading Association's Outstanding Teacher Educator Award. Dr. Edwards was named as the 2017-2018 Jeanne S. Chall Visiting Researcher at Harvard Graduate School of Education. In 2019, she received the AERA Scholars of Color Distinguished Career Contribution Award (senior level). She was recently appointed by Governor Whitmer to the 2020-2024 Michigan PreK-12 Literacy Commission. She was also awarded the 2020 Oscar S. Causey Award from the Literacy Research Association (LRA) for her outstanding contributions to reading research. She is the first African American in the history of the organization to receive this award. She was also the first African American President of LRA some years back.

2013 –2016 Invited to serve as a member of the Reading Research Quarterly's Editorial Consulting Board. There are three major responsibilities that the International Reading Associations ask of RRQ's Editorial Consulting Board members:

- Continue as an exceptional reviewer by reviewing four or five manuscripts per year.
- Help us identify key scholars who might serve as ad hoc reviewers when manuscripts have received widely disparate reviews and when we might need guest reviewers to address issues that are outside the current expertise of the review board.
- Provide advice and comments to us, the editors, as we strive to maintain and build on the rich history of RRQ as the premier journal for quality research on reading and literacy. We envision a yearly discussion that will focus on the impact of the journal and ways to ensure that it is making a significant difference in the field of reading. November 2013

2013, Invited by Dr. Willis D. Hawley, Professor of Education and Public Policy, University of Maryland, Director, Teaching Diverse Student Initiative, Southern Poverty Law Center and Dr. Jacqueline Irvine, Professor Emeritus Emory University to evaluate the widely used teacher evaluation protocol developed by Charlotte Danielson and her associates. Drs. Hawley and Irvine wrote a paper that suggested how infusing some of the culturally responsive pedagogy (CRP) related to practices could enrich the rubrics that defined “distinguished” teaching. They sent me a small number of rubrics from the instrument and asked me to do two things: (1) suggest changes in wording and (2) relevant research for each rubric that I thought could be modified. As an IRA Board member (1998-2001) and the 2010-2011 IRA President, I have had the opportunity to speak to international educators in the following countries: Africa (Botswana, Cape Town, Nigeria, Tanzania, and Zimbabwe), Barbados, Bermuda, Bangladesh, Trinidad and Tobago, Philippines, China, Japan, Singapore, Taiwan, Thailand, Malaysia, New Zealand, India, and Korea). Also, I served as IRA Board liaison for Africa. In September 2004, I represented the International Reading Association as a Volunteer Literacy Facilitator at Alvan Ikoku College of Education in Owerri, Imo State, Nigeria. This literacy action research workshop was the second in a series of three facilitated by IRA as part of the World Bank's Presidential Initiative on Civic Empowerment and Engagement. The workshop was designed as a multicultural approach to literacy development. It also served as a workshop on teaching techniques intended to provide teachers of all age levels and subjects areas with examples of explicit strategies for linking learners, texts, and the world.
